

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A telephone set is modified to permit it to automatically send repetitive data associated with telephone purchases. A retailer and a customer interact to ensure that accurate data is initially stored while eliminating the necessity of repeating the same information during subsequent purchases. A removable portable device stores the same information and permits a user to make purchases from any telephone.

5